Foreword

By His Eminence, Shaikh Ṣāliḥ ibn ‘Abdul-‘Azîz ibn Muhammad Āl ash-Shaikh, Minister of Islamic Affairs, Endowments, Da‘wah and Guidance, and the General Supervisor of the Complex

Praise be to Allah, Who says: “Verily, in mentioning Allah do hearts find comfort” [13: 28]. I thank Him (~), He Who is well-deserving of praise and gratitude, and may His peace and blessings be upon the one, i.e., Prophet Muhammad (~), who was sent as a mercy to all beings, and an example to those who take heed.

1. ذِکْرِ اللَّهِ (dhikru Allahi) ideally entails both remembering Allah at heart and mentioning Him by tongue. It is usually translated as ‘remembrance of Allah’, however I rather opt for ‘mentioning Allah’ in my translation as mentioning, unlike remembering, is an outward manifestation of what has come to mind.
Mentioning and praising Allah (ﷻ) is one of the simple forms of worship that one does not find trouble in practising. It lends itself well to the worshipper whatever the circumstances might be. Yet the reward for it is great. Abu d-Dardâ’ (ﷺ) said that the Messenger of Allah (ﷺ) said: ‘Should I not tell you of the best of what you can do, the highest in the view of your King\(^2\), the loftiest of status, better to you than spending gold and silver and better to you than meeting your enemy, striking their necks and getting struck on the necks by them?’ They said: ‘Yes, O Messenger of Allah’. He said: ‘Mentioning Allah’. at-Tirmidhî (no. 3377) and Ahmad (vol. 6, p. 447). al-Hâkim said: ‘it has a worthy chain of narrators but they, i.e. al-Bukhârî and Muslim, did not mention it’ (vol. 1, p. 673).

Muslim narrates in his authentic Sahîh that Sa‘d ibn abi Waqqâs (ﷺ) said: ‘We were in the Messenger of Allah’s (ﷺ) company when he said: ‘Should one of you be so feeble not to earn every day one thousand hasanahs?’ Then one of the attendees asked him: ‘How should one of us earn one thousand hasanahs?’ He replied: ‘Praise Allah one hundred times and it will be recorded one thousand hasanahs or one thousand sayyi’ahs will be stuck off [from one’s record]’. (no. 4866).

Not only this, but mentioning Allah (纨) opens up the heart to a variety of virtues and a number of ways to serve Him. Constantly mentioning Allah (纨) saves one from forgetting Him, which is a cause of hardship in this life as well as in the Hereafter. Allah (纨) says: “Do not be like those who forgot Allah so He made them forget themselves; those are indeed the defiantly disobedient” [59: 19]. When a servant forgets himself he keeps away from what is in his best of interests, busies himself away from doing what is good and, as a result, he will wither away and perish. If this was the only advantage of mentioning Allah (纨), indeed it would suffice. What would you say if more advantages are added

3. That is by saying سبحان الله (subhāna Allah), which literally means glory be to Allah.
on to it? Among these are that:

1. Allah (ﷻ) will remember the servant who mentions Him. He (ﷻ) says: “Remember Me and I shall Remember you, and be grateful to Me, and never deny Me” [2: 152].

2. The Messenger was asked: ‘Which deed is seen as the best by Allah?’ He said: ‘That you die with a tongue moist with mentioning Allah’. al-Bukhârî in Khalq Af‘âlu l-‘Ibâd (p. 72, no. 281) and at-Tabâranî in al-Kabîr (vol. 20, p. 93). It has been related by Mu‘âdh (ﷺ) that the Messenger of Allah (ﷻ) said: ‘Never has a human done a thing more likely to save him from Allah’s punishment than mentioning Allah, glorified He is’. Ahmad (vol. 4, p. 239).

3. It pleases the Most Merciful (ﷻ) and comforts the heart as it expels the devil and suppresses him. Thus it soothes the troubled heart.

4. It instils in the heart vigilance and awareness of what is right and what is wrong. As a result, it brings the servant closer to his Lord (ﷻ).
These in addition to the many advantages of mentioning Allah (ﷻ) about which the great scholar Ibn al-Qayyim said in his book Al-Wâbil as-Sayyib: ‘There are more than one hundred advantages to mentioning Allah’.

Mentioning Allah (ﷻ) is a key to all that is good for the servant both in this life and in the Hereafter. When Allah (ﷻ) bestows this key on one of His servants, it means that He willed to open up for him the door to all that is good. On the contrary, when the Almighty withholds this key from one of His servants the door to goodness is tightly shut before him.

For this end, the Messenger (ﷻ) used to constantly mention Allah in whatever state he was, day and night, in his heart or by his tongue, privately or in public. He used to mention Allah when he went to sleep, wanted to be intimate with his wife, went to the lavatory and on coming out of it, washed for prayer and after he finished, prepared for prayer and after he had performed it, when it rained, when the wind blew, when wearing a garment, when entering a mosque and upon leaving it, and at all times of the day.
You must know that mentioning Allah by the tongue is commendable in all cases save some that the shari‘ah made as exceptions.

Mentioning Allah affects the heart in a way that makes it occupied with what it derives benefit from, its worship more complete, and steers it away from what is displeasing to Allah (ﷺ). As a result all of the human’s body parts and senses will be in a pleasant condition that he would look at, listen to and walk to things that please Allah, and administer justice in a way conformant with what He ordained. The servant thus lives in accordance with what Allah has ordained and for His sake. Hence the doors of virtue and worship will be opened up for him, whereas those of vice and evil will be shut up.

Our rightly-guided predecessors were known for this. They were closer to good than evil because they busied themselves with mentioning Allah (ﷻ) in most circumstances. The great scholar Ibn Taymiyah says: ‘Mentioning Allah is to the heart like water is to fish. How would the fish be if it leaves the water?’ (Majm‘u l-Fatâwâ, vol. 10, p. 85).
Mentioning Allah (ﷻ) comes in many forms. Some of it is praise. For example:

سُبْحَانَ اللَّهِ، وَالْحَمْدُ لَهُ، وَلَا إِلَهَ يَكْفِي إِلَهًا وَاللَّهُ أَكْبَرُ.

[subhāna Allāhi, wa l-hamdu li Allāhi, wa lā ilāhā illā Allāhu, wa Allāhu akbaru.]

Lit. Glorified be Allah. Gratitude be to Allah. There is no god worthy of worship except for Allah. Allah is the Greatest].

Some of it is prayer and supplication as in:

[Rabbanâ zalânâ anfusânâ wa in lam taghîr lanâ wa tarhâmânâ lâ nakûnannya min l-khâsîrînà.]

Lit. “Our Lord! We have wronged ourselves. If you do not forgive us and have mercy on us we will surely be among the losers”] [7: 23].

And:

يا حَيُّ يَا قَيُومُ بِرَحْمَتِكَ أَسْتَغْفِيُّ

[yâ Hayyu yâ Qayyûmu bi rahmatîka astaghîthu.]

Lit. O You Ever-Living, Omnipotent! By Your mercy, I beseech You].
The Messenger’s supplications contained praise of Allah in addition to supplicating to Him for provision of assistance and other matters. In a hadith he says: ‘The best supplication is \[\text{al-hamdu li Allahi. Lit. Gratitude be to Allah, i.e. I am grateful to Allah}\]. at-Tirmidhî (no. 3305) and Ibn Mâjah (no. 3790).

Once it was said to Sufyân ibn ‘Uyaynah: ‘How can it be that saying: ‘Gratitude be to Allah’, is a supplication’. Sufyân answered: ‘Did you not hear what Umayyah ibn s-Salt said to Abdu-Allah ibn Jud‘ân when he wanted to ask him for help:

Should I mention my request?
Or does your generosity suffice,
Indeed, your are a man known for generosity,
If a person praises you one day,
It is enough for him just to do so.

This is a human-being, yet he felt it enough for a person to praise him but not to directly ask him for help. Now, what do you think of the Lord of all beings?’ (Adapted from Madâriju s-Sâlikîn (vol. 2, Variations of mentioning Allah differ in degree of significance and weight according to their meanings. For example, mentioning Allah with the testimony of monotheism, [la ilaha illa Allahu. Lit. There is no god worthy of worship except for Allah]. For which the world was created, Messengers were sent, Books were revealed, Heaven and Hell were mentioned and people divided into believers and disbelievers, is greater in reward and more significant than any other variation. The Messenger (ﷺ) said: ‘The best way to mention Allah is [by saying] there is no god worthy of worship except for Allah’. at-Tirmidhî (no. 3383) and ibn Hibbân in his Sahih (no. 846).

Mentioning Allah (ﷻ) also comes in different forms and degrees, the best of which is that in which the heart and the tongue take part. A lesser degree is that of mentioning Allah by the heart alone. If it is by tongue only then its degree is the least of all. The purpose of mentioning Allah is to have the presence of heart and mind to do things intentionally. The presence of mind is what the person who mentions Allah should aim at and does his best to be mindful of whatever he says.

an-Nawawî, may Allah have mercy on his soul, said: ‘One should know that the benefit of mentioning Allah is not limited to saying: glory be to Allah⁴, there is no god worthy of worship except for Allah⁵, I am grateful to Allah⁶ and Allah is the Greatest⁷. However, every person who is engaged in an act that pleases Allah is mentioning Allah’. (This saying has been related in this form by Sa‘îd ibn Jubayr, may Allah be pleased with him, along with other scholars).

‘Atâ’, may Allah have mercy on his soul, said: ‘The gatherings of mentioning Allah are those in which what is allowable and what is forbidden are discussed, that is, how to sell and buy, pray and fast, marry and divorce, perform hajj, and engage in matters of this nature?\(^8\) (p. 9).

Abu ‘Amr ibn as-Salâh, may Allah have mercy on his soul, was asked about the limit that, when reached, makes one one of those men and women who mention Allah in abundance\(^9\). He replied: ‘I believe, that if one persists on the time-honoured supplications day and night at different times and circumstances, he/she will be one of those men and women who mention Allah in abundance. However, Allah knows best’.

8. That is, how would you perform these acts without knowing the rules of what is allowable and what is forbidden? This quotation is an exemplification of the previous one: people in gatherings in which these rules are studied and spelled out are engaged in an act that pleases Allah, thus, as in an-Nawawi’s definition, this is a way of mentioning Allah.

9. The reference here is to āyah [33: 35] of the Glorious Qur’an:

“...and the men and women who mention Allah in abundance, Allah has prepared for them forgiveness and a great reward”.
The one who mentions Allah should do so in the best manner possible. If he is sitting in a place, he should face the qiblah, sitting humbly and serenely.

There is no doubt that a Muslim is demanded to praise Allah. However, this can be both unrestricted and restricted. It is unrestricted with regards to time, i.e. it can be offered at all times. On the other hand, it is restricted with regards to forms of worship. As much as a person is not allowed to say:

[Lit. There is no god worthy of worship except for Allah] a thousand times while bowing down\textsuperscript{10} or prostrating\textsuperscript{11} because though it comes under what the shari‘ah stipulates, it does not conform to it completely. A person is not allowed to mention Allah in a manner deviant from that of the Messenger’s on specific occasions.

Urged by the paramount importance of mentioning Allah and its high status, it gives the

Preface

By the General Secretariat of King Fahd Qur'an Printing Complex

Praise be to Allah; we thank Him, ask Him for assistance and seek His forgiveness. We seek refuge in Him from the evils of ourselves and the misdeeds we have committed. Whoever Allah guides there is no one who can misguide him and whoever Allah misguides no one will lead him to the right path. We testify that there is no god worthy of worship except for Allah, alone without associates, and that Muhammad is His servant and Messenger, may the peace and blessings of Allah be upon him, his family and his Companions.

Allah has sent His Messenger, Muhammad (ﷺ), with guidance and a glaring light, as a bearer of glad tidings, a warner and a caller to Allah, by His permission, and a glowing lantern. He called to every good and virtue and warned against every evil and vice. He was the best adviser to his nation, compassionate towards them, keen on leading them to the path of righteousness and success and steering them away from the path of failure and loss. May the peace and blessings of Allah be upon him for being a sincere adviser, eager for the good of his nation, kind to the believers and merciful to them. Allah (ﷻ) says: “There has certainly come to you a Messenger from among yourselves. Grievous to him is what you suffer; concerned over you and to the believers is kind and merciful” [9:128].

Allah (ﷻ) explained that there is no happiness or success for people in this life as well as in the Hereafter except by following what His Messenger (ﷺ) came with, from Him. There is no way to win His pleasure and escape His wrath and punishment other than adhering to his Messenger Muhammad’s (ﷺ) sunnah and following his example closely. Allah (ﷻ) says: “Whoever obeys Allah and the Messenger, then those will be with the ones upon whom Allah has bestowed favour of the Messengers, the steadfast to the truth, the martyrs and the righteous. Excellent are those as Companions!” [4: 69]. He (ﷻ) also says: “Whatever the Messenger gives you take and whatever he forbids you from abstain [from it]” [59: 7].
Among what he (ﷺ) pointed his nation to and encouraged them to do is mentioning Allah and supplicating to Him. With this comes happiness in both lives, comfort to the heart, routing of one’s enemy, achievement of goals and the pleasure of the Creator and Sustainer. Allah (ﷻ) says: “O you who believe! When you encounter a company [from the enemy forces], stand firm and remember [and mention] Allah much that you may be winners”. [8: 45]; “Remember Me and I shall remember you, and be grateful to Me, and never deny Me” [2:152]; “…and the men and women who mention Allah in abundance, Allah has prepared for them forgiveness and a great reward” [33: 35], and; “Your Lord said: ‘Supplicate to Me and I will respond to you’ ” [40: 60].

The Messenger of Allah (ﷺ) said in response to a person who asked him for advice about a thing that he should hold fast to: ‘Your tongue should always be moist with mentioning Allah’. at-Tirmidhî (no. 3375) as a sound hadith and al-Hâkim (vol.1, p. 495) as an authentic hadith. He (ﷺ) also said: ‘The distinguished are well ahead!’ They said: ‘Who are the distinguished, Messenger

It is reported that he (ﷺ) said: ‘The example of that who mentions Allah and that who does not is that of the living and the dead’. al-Bukhârî (no. 6044) and Muslim (no. 779). He also said: ‘Allah, exalted He is, says: ‘I am what My servant thinks of Me and I am with him when He mentions Me’. Muslim (no. 2675).

Because so much importance is attached to mentioning Allah and supplicating to Him, it is required that every heedful Muslim should take these supplications as a fortification and supply for the Last Day, and make his tongue always moist with them. Thus taking the example of the best of all humans and the guide of the God-conscious, may the peace and blessings of Allah be upon him and upon all other Messengers.

This book of ours, كتاب الذكر والدعاء في ضوء الكتاب

12 A person should, at all times, think well of his Lord. Thus, he should ask Him while absolutely certain that he will be responded to.
(The Book of Dhikr and Supplication in Accordance with the Qur'an and the Sunnah), contains a blessed collection of supplications and prayers as mentioned by the Messenger (ﷺ) to fulfill the need of the many Muslims who want to be among those who mention Allah in abundance.

The compiler of the book made sure that it should be concise, including only what is important on the topic of mentioning Allah (ﷻ) and supplicating to Him. He also limited himself to citing those supplications whose reference to the Messenger (ﷺ) is established. This we deemed should suffice and we saw no need to mention unauthentic supplications which are often attributed to the Messenger of Islam, the infallible, to whom the following āyah was revealed: “This day I have perfected your religion for you and completed My favour upon you and have chosen for you Islam as a religion” [5:3]. He (ﷺ) delivered the religion completely and perfectly as his Lord commanded him to: “O Messenger! Convey what has been revealed to you from your Lord, and if you do not, then you have not conveyed His message” [5:67]. The compiler added, whenever needed, some meanings that the supplications contain. He also added diacritical marks to make the supplications easy to read, and being mindful the mistaken readings which may give unintended meanings.

We ask Allah (ﷻ) to reward this book’s compiler handsomely, and to make it of great benefit to Muslims from all parts of the world. We also ask Him to make it piously devoted for the sake of pleasing Him only. We ask Him to reward the rulers of this country for their service to Islam.
Introduction

Praise be to Allah the Lord of all beings. The winners are indeed the God-conscious. May the peace and blessing of Allah be upon the best of all Prophets, our Prophet Muhammad and upon his family and Companions.

The best thing that a Muslim can take care of in his life and occupy his time with is, undoubtedly, mentioning his Lord (الله) and perpetually supplicating to him. This is one of the main ways of gaining happiness, serenity and success in every aspect of a servant’s life. It is also a key to every good that a servant gains in this life and in the Hereafter.

It is well-known that the Messenger (رسول الله), the most sincere adviser to his nation, left the people after him on the clearest and most straight of paths with respect to mentioning Allah (الله) and supplicating to Him, in particular, and every other aspect of their lives, in general. He has not left any good thing without directing people to it and directed them as how to gain it. Similarly, he indicated to them everything that is evil, underlined its serious consequences and warned them against it. Allah (ﷻ) says: “There has certainly come to you a Messenger from among yourselves. Grievous to him is what you suffer; concerned over you and to the believers is kind and merciful” [9:128], and; “It is He who sent among the illiterate a Messenger from themselves reciting to them His āyāhs, purifying them and teaching them the Book [i.e., the Qur’an] and Wisdom. Indeed, they were before grossly misguided” [62: 2].

The Messenger of Allah (ﷺ) explained, with regards to mentioning Allah and supplicating to Him, everything that people need. He explained the best manner in which to engage in supplicating to Allah and mentioning Him: what to say during the day as well as at night, during prayers and after, when entering a mosque and at coming out of it, before sleeping, while sleeping, and when waking up, when scared, before eating and after, when mounting a means of transport, before travelling, when one sees something he likes, or when he sees something he does not like, when a calamity befalls, at times of hardship and when sorrowed and at all circumstances. Following these will certainly make a person achieve lasting happiness, total comfort, safety and steadfastness. He also elucidated in great detail the varying degrees of mentioning Allah and supplicating to Him, its types, routines, requisites and times.

Thus, the Prophetic supplications are the best way that a Muslim can ever mention Allah and supplicate to Him with. They fulfill all the conditions for the best way to mention Allah and supplicate to Him. Prophetic supplications contain all that is good, useful and are sure to bring positive results. Any other person could not have been completely cognizant of them or able to come up with the like of them. Other supplications that people improvise could be labored, not duly respectful, not following the stated rules, associating partners with Allah or any other sort of shortcoming that people could not realise its true nature. Such untraditional supplications may be sound in meaning, however those which have been related from the Messenger (ﷺ) are certainly more perfect and sufficient. Additionally, great reward and benefit will come out of continuously saying Prophetic supplications in this life and the other. Whoever reiterates them at all times and circumstances, in accordance with the Qur'an and the sunnah, will be among those who mention Allah in abundance.

By reason of this, I have made the effort to present this concise book containing a collection of Prophetic traditional supplications, taking into consideration the following:

1- That the supplication is established (i.e., authentic). Most of the hadiths documented here are found in the two authentic books of hadith, al-Bukhârî and Muslim, or one of them. Those that are not written therein have to be authentic or sound, in keeping with what the prominent scholars in this field deemed conditional.

2- Being brief when documenting the hadith. Mentioning only one or two sources, the number of the hadith or the volume and page.

3- Taking special care to include the hadith under appropriate headings according to what is found in the well-known books of supplications.

4- Being brief, to make the book easy to refer to.

5- Explaining uncommon words and some of the meanings that are there in the hadith if and when necessary.

6- Including diacritical marks to make the hadith easy to read in the correct way.

I ask Allah, the Bountiful, to make this book beneficial to its compiler, readers and publishers, for He is the able Lord of everything. May His peace and blessings be upon our Messenger, his family and Companions.
Translator’s Notes

To facilitate reading and understanding this book and to further its purpose, I made use of the following:

1- Footnotes. All the footnotes included in this book are mine drawing on the literature of the most widely-acknowledged commentaries on hadiths of our Prophet (ﷺ). Throughout many of these, I also consulted with specialists in hadith and Arabic language.

2- Print and punctuation. For example, the Prophet’s own words are set apart from that of the narrator’s by using bold print, and the Qur’anic āyahs are enclosed within double inverted commas.

3- Transliteration and translation. Each instance of dhikr is followed by a transliteration to facilitate its reading and memorisation, as well as a translation that is faithful to the original without jeopardising readability or understandability. The translation is preceded with the abbreviation “Lit.” which means literally. Both transliteration and translation are set apart from the body of hadith with square brackets.

The Virtue of Mentioning Allah (ﷻ) and Supplicating to Him and their Importance

Allah (ﷻ) says: “Remember Me and I shall remember you, and be grateful to me, and never deny Me” [2: 152];

“Mentioning Allah is indeed superior” [29: 45];

“O you who believe! Mention Allah in abundance; and exalt Him [in praise] morning and late afternoon” [33: 41-42];

“...and the men and women who mention Allah in abundance, Allah has prepared for them forgiveness and a great reward” [33: 35];

“Mention your Lord in abundance and exalt [Him in praise] in the evening and in the morning” [3: 41];

“Those who mention Allah while standing or sitting or [lying] on their sides” [3: 191];

“And when you have completed your rites\(^\text{13}\), remember Allah as much as you remember your fathers or [even] more” [2: 200];

“O you who believe! Let not your wealth and children busy you away from mentioning of Allah” [63: 9];

“To Him the good word ascends and the righteous deed raises it” [35: 10], and;

“Mention your Lord within yourself, in humility and with fear and without being [too much] aloud in speech in the mornings and in the afternoons, and do not be among the heedless” [7: 205].

A number of hadiths also underline the urgency of mentioning Allah (ﷻ):

1. Abu Mūsā al-Ash‘arî (ﷺ) said that the Messenger of Allah (ﷺ) said: ‘The example of that who mentions Allah and that who does not is that of the living and the dead’. al-Bukhârî (no. 6407). The wording of the hadith as documented in Muslim’s Sahîh is: ‘The example of a house in which Allah is mentioned and that in which Allah is not mentioned is that of the living and the dead’. (no. 779).

2. Abu Hurayrah (ﷺ) and Abu Sa‘îd al-Khudrî (ﷺ) are reported to have testified that the Messenger said: ‘Never does a group of people gather mentioning Allah unless the angels encircle them, mercy enshrouds them, serenity descends upon them and Allah will mention them to those in His presence’. Muslim (no. 2700).

3. Abu Hurayrah (ﷺ) said: ‘The Messenger of Allah (ﷺ) was on his way to Makkah when he passed a mountain called Jumdān and said: ‘Go forth! This is Jumdān! The distinguished are well ahead!’ They said: ‘Who are the distinguished, Messenger of Allah?’ He said: ‘The men and women who mention Allah in abundance’. Muslim (no. 2676).

4. Abu Hurayrah (ﷺ) said that Messenger of Allah (ﷺ) said: ‘There are angels of Allah who roam the Earth looking for those who are in the habit of mentioning Allah. The Messenger of Allah (ﷺ) came upon a circle of his Companions and said: ‘What made you gather?’ They said: ‘We gathered to mention Allah and thank Him for guiding us to Islam and what he bestowed upon us’. He said: ‘Do you swear by Allah that this is the only reason?’ They said: ‘By Allah this is the only reason behind our gathering’. He said: ‘I did not ask you to swear because I doubted you, but Jibrîl came to me and told me that Allah, exalted and glorified He is, takes pride in you in front of the angels’. Muslim (no. 2701).

Is there anyone to seek My forgiveness that I shall forgive him?”’ al-Bukhârî (no. 7494) and Muslim (no. 758).

He will send [rain from] the sky upon you in bountiful showers, He will [generously] provide you with wealth and children, will make for you gardens and make for you rivers” [71: 10-12];

“O my people [said Nūh (ﷺ)]! Ask your Lord for forgiveness and then repent to Him. He will send [rain from] the sky upon you in [plenteous showers] and add strength to your strength and do not turn away as criminals” [11: 52];

“And [commanding you to] ask your Lord for forgiveness and then repent to Him. He will bestow on you good provisions for a specified term and reward every doer of favour His favour” [11: 3], and;

I am well-acquainted with what you do” [23: 51] and: “O you who believe! Eat from the good things that We have provided for you” [2: 172]. Then he [ﷺ] mentioned a man who travels for a long period of time, his hair is unkempt and dirty, extending his hands to the sky [saying]: ‘My Lord! My Lord!’; while his food is unlawful, his drink is unlawful, his clothes are unlawful, and he was reared on unlawful food. How would he be replied to? Muslim (no. 1015).
